'Chloë Bass: Wayfinding'

The West Coast debut of Chloë Bass' buzzy exhibition, "Wayfinding," is all about reading the signs. A massive outdoor presentation — which for the first time in the Skirball Museum's history fully utilizes its 15-acre outdoor campus for a continuous art installation — takes inspiration from public wayfinding signage, erecting sculptures that point toward emotions like anxiety, compassion, desire and loss and encourage viewers to reflect on the human experience. The Skirball exhibition will feature new elements that are site-specific and a piece of audio art in collaboration with L.A. artists. On view from Nov. 17 through March 12. 2701 N. Sepulveda Blvd., Los Angeles, skirball.org
